VAPVJC celebrates welcome party

By S. Vidya Sagar

I interviewed Suresh Kumar [English sir] about festival of welcome party. I asked how the welcome party began at our college.

“Our college celebrates welcome party on this occasion,” he said. “Welcome party is being celebrated by the second year students. This party is going to improve the relationship between first year and second year students. This welcome party, the friendship will be increased. It is tradition in every college. The first year students don’t know how to develop the skills.”

On this occasion, the second year students will give guidance to the freshers. The chief guest and other dignitaries will guide the creation of positive behaviour. All first year students come to the stage and introduce themselves.

This welcome party is especially conducted for the first year students so that all students share the same feelings and opinions. In this celebration, so many students dance and sing so in this party all students enjoy.

Professor teaches about Muggulu

By K. Sravanthi and K. Rajitha

Ken Botnick Sir studies Muggulu. He saw the muggulu for first time in Tamil Nadu. In Tamil Nadu they used to call them “callom” instead of muggulu.

“Muggulu are made with dots and with dots we can draw many types of patterns. We begin with a line and that we make slides. White powder makes the lines, lines make shapes and shapes connect to make a pattern,” he said.

Each morning women make a new muggu to welcome to the whole day. They make them in front of the house to welcome anyone (except robbers).

It is also one type of skill. These are used in the grid, the visual structure of muggu. “With the grid we can draw many different patterns,” he said.

The muggu is auspicious. It looks like a good day.

Students celebrate Ursu festival

By R. Bhargavi

Annaram village has powerful gods. They are four brothers and one sister. Every year in July, village celebrates Urusu. It is big festival

On the day, all people wake up early and wash their hair and wear new clothes. Afterwards, they all arrive at the festival location.

In the evening time, Muslim people bathe to the god and decorate it with new clothes and flowers and perfume. Afterwards, Muslim people go to the Muslim Muzee’s house. They cook sweets and make five flags. Then they go on a procession around the village. This day is called Sandhal. Some people go shopping.

The festival is very fun and very colorful,” Trisha Madam said.

Sudha Chandra

By V. Anitha

Sudha Chandran was great dancer. Sudha's father's name was K.D. Chandran. About 10 years ago, Sudha was a promising 17-year-old dancer with more than 80 performances behind her. One day, was injured in a road accident about 25 kilometers from Tiruchinapali, Tamil Nadu, where the family had gone for their annual pilgrimage.

Perhaps she was not treated properly at the local hospital where she was rushed. In any case, her injuries resulted in a gangrenous infection. When she was taken to Chennai, the doctors there tried hard to stop the growth of the infection, but finally they were forced to amputate her right leg from about 8 centimeters below the knee.

In the months that followed, Sudha's search began to find a way of dancing again. Dr. Promod Sethi made her an artificial leg. On October 27, 1982, she gave a gurudakshina at the residence of her guru. On January 28, 1984, Sudha made a historic comeback by giving a public recital in Bombay. The performance was notable because it was classical quality.

She impressed the guest of honor, Helen Keller. Sudha's amazing success story took an interesting turn when a Hyderabad film producer decided to make a Telegu film not just based on her story, but with her as the lead. The picture's name is Mayuri.

"Sudha was great dancer. I have learned from her a lot," K. Sravanthi said.

Dear Students,

I am so glad that I got to spend a month with all of you. I had a truly wonderful time and do not want to return to the U.S.A. I have learned so much from all of you and I hope I have taught you all plenty as well. I have made many fabulous friends here and hope that I can return sometime in the future. Please keep in touch. I love getting emails and I will always respond to them. I will miss you all.

OPINIONS

The Woods By P. Rahul Teja

In the forest one fine morning, an animal came. That animal's name is Cow. In forest, the animals will fear for his sound and one morning fox will go and see the animal. They will see that the lion will fear when the cow shouts.

Then fox will think and go to the lion and fox will tell to the lion that that animal is so big and fox will tell to lion it is not really so big. Fox will tell lies to the lion to scare the lion.

At once the cow will come to the forest and cow will eat the grass and the animals will be scared and they will know at last that animal cow is not a harmful animal and they will live happily. At last, the lion will kill the fox and cow.

Students study environment By G. Swathi

Last year, A.J. Sir taught A. Soumya about environmental science. In that environmental science class, he taught percentages of nitrates, pH value dissolved in oxygen, G.P.S. fluorine, and ammonia phosphates in many places like on rocks at K.R.S. school, U.P.S. school, river, R.D.F. college water, and Kalleda pond. He also taught about many things like evaporation, condensation, and underground water.

"We enjoyed very much our time with him," A. Soumya said, a student in A.J. Sir's class last year that now studies second year M.P.C. course at Vanitha Achutha Pai Vidalaya College in Kalleda.
